SHOOTIN' SCHOOL

CORE VALUES

POSITIVITY -

We load our players with positive energy. Of course, when they do something incorrectly, we inform them and make corrections. However, corrections are always made in a respectful and positive manner. We want to push the players that we train, but we also want them to hold their head up high and participate on EVERY court with confidence!

ENTHUSIASM -

We love basketball! When we get on the court, we are ready to train and take any players game to the next level! Our goal is not only to make every workout, awesome, but to have our enthusiasm for being in the gym rub off on our trainees.

TEAMWORK -

Our staff meets and communicates all the time. Whether we are discussing player progress, skill development drills, scheduling, player groupings, gym space, etc., we are always on the same page. Great communication is something that we truly value and one of the major reasons that our Shootin' School staff makes a great team!

DISCIPLINE -

We require 100% effort from all of our trainees. Every player is on a different level, some players need the basics, some need advanced training, however, all players are encouraged and positively motivated to give 100% effort throughout every workout. We want to build good habits, so having players "leave it all on the floor" for every workout, builds that level of disciple that we want to stick with them for the rest of their life.

RESPECT -

We respect all of our trainees, and we expect them to give us the same respect in return. This makes for a very healthy rapport with all of our players and sets the standard of how players should be treating other adults and other coaches.

SPORTSMANSHIP -

We instill the fire to WIN in all of our players. Coach Gino Auriemma of the Uconn Huskies stated, "if your trainer doesn't teach you to WIN, you should fire him/her". That being said, we also want our players to learn how to react and behave when they lose. Winning and losing is part of life. We want players to know that people do not judge you based on wins and losses, but how you react and behave in those instances.
